for Tomorrow's Scientists (GIFTS 2026)

CALL FOR NOMINATIONS

ScienceAbroad and GIF invite nominations and self-nominations for the 2026 GIFTS Day Forum.

A full-day scientific forum for outstanding early-career researchers who will help shape the future of German-Israeli research cooperation. The forum combines research visibility with practical discussions on mobility, funding, collaboration, mentoring, and academic leadership.

Why participate?

- | Present your work to academic leaders and institutional partners.
- | Build research contacts across disciplines and career stages.
- | Learn about funding, mobility, and collaboration pathways.
- | Join a next-generation German-Israeli science network.

Participation format

- | All participants will present a poster.
- | Some participants may also be invited to give an oral flash talk.
- | The participation is free of charge.

Selection

- | Submissions will be selected by the organizing committee and notified directly.
- | Selection will be based on academic excellence and potential contribution to German-Israeli scientific exchange.

Who should apply?

- | Postdoctoral researchers.
- | Senior PhD candidates.
- | Young principal investigators.
- | Early-career researchers affiliated with universities, research institutes, academic centers, or relevant research programs.
- | Applicants from all fields of science, scholarship, and research are welcome.

How to apply?

- | Applications and nominations should be submitted through the GIFTS application and registration website:
<https://gifts.scienceabroad.org.il/>
- | The application should include:
 - 1) Academic CV.
 - 2) Short research abstract.

Deadline

- | Nominations and applications should be submitted by September 15th, 2026.
- | Late applications may be considered in coordination with the organizers and subject to availability.
- | For late submissions, contact:
FallingWalls@ScienceAbroad.org.il

We encourage mentors, PIs, program directors, and institutional partners to nominate promising candidates
